MLA Citation Guide

FYI...

- Source citations are listed in ABC order at the end of your paper, project, etc.
- Title your list of sources as Works Cited centered at the top of the first page with no quotation marks, underlining, or italicizing.
- Sources are double-spaced within and between entries. Each entry has a hanging indent.
- Include URLs in the citation. Omit "http://" or "https://"

"If I "just know" a fact or idea (something I learned in high school, for example), do I have to cite my high school course or textbook?

This question falls under the issue of common knowledge. Common knowledge generally includes biographical information, dates of historical events, and other undisputed, widely available information. If you think that your average, reasonable reader already accepts this information as fact, it is not necessary to document it." ~ Purdue OWL
